

SENIOR LIVING ARCHITECTURE

At BlueBike Greer, we believe in the power of entertainment value to turn spaces into places, somewhere unique and memorable. Far from something insignificant or extraneous, entertainment and aesthetic can create the inviting, comforting, stimulating environments in which people form connections and a sense of community. Pairing entertainment and creativity with function is a necessary part of creating something of value socially, culturally and economically. If there's anything we've learned through our experience with retail and entertainment venues, it's the importance of addressing this whole experience of a space if it's going to be a place people want to be.

Nowhere is that more true than today's senior living, where a revolutionary group of boomers are generating a revolution in life-care communities. That's why BlueBike Greer is dedicated specifically to designing for these vital, engaged, tech-savvy seniors looking for more than simply living space. We believe in developing whole social centers, complete communities with access to life-enriching elements like shopping, volunteering opportunities, worship services, community involvement, fitness centers and spas, and other forms of engagement. And inside the homes themselves, we design stylish living with the amenities these seniors have come to expect, like kitchen facilities, large closets, outdoor decks, and available cable and Internet.

BlueBike Greer is committed to delivering this lifestyle with a holistic approach to design that defines and separates us. We understand the unique opportunities of life-care communities, and have the experience to address the challenges of care with the design philosophy to emphasize the life.
